Areas of Expertise

Children Private and Public Law

Lucy is a family law specialist and has practised in family law throughout her professional career. Her practice now spans all areas of children work. She often acts in complex, multi-party or high conflict intractable private law disputes. In public law children cases she acts for parents, children, local authorities and extended family. Lucy has experience of handling cases involving suspected non-accidental injury, sexual abuse, neglect and domestic abuse, where there are parental mental health, learning disability or capacity issues, concerns around substance abuse and addiction, and involving children with special educational needs and disabilities / complex medical needs. Lucy's instructions also encompass cases involving suspected trafficking, county lines and gang involvement, honour violence and FGM/c.

Lucy's practice includes matters with international aspects, including abduction, leave to remove and cross border families. Lucy is also experienced in dealing with in post-care applications such as applications for discharge of care or placement orders, leave to oppose adoption orders and contested adoptions.

In addition, Lucy is experienced in cases involving Human Rights Act claims or issues relating to reporting restriction orders or publicity. Her practice also encompasses the range of injunctive work, including Pt IV Family Law Act and forced marriage.

Lucy is instructed at first instance in the Family Court and High Court and in appellate work. In appropriate cases Lucy will undertake family work via public access.

Court of Protection

Lucy is a family law specialist and has practised in family law throughout her professional career. Her practice now spans all areas of family law with a particular emphasis on children work. In addition to her children practice Lucy is able to deal with Court of Protection work.

Recommendations

"Lucy is approachable and contactable and excellent with clients and tribunals. She is thorough and willing to go the extra mile on her own initiative. She is someone who thinks more widely rather than just on what's happening in the courtroom."

CHAMBERS UK, 2022
FAMILY/MATRIMONIAL

"Lucy is extremely dedicated to her work. She is extremely knowledgeable and has great attention to detail. Lucy works very hard to try to get the best outcome for the clients and she ensures she is fully apprised with the law in the area and all options available to the client. She is also very good with clients and is sensitive to their needs."

Alongside her court practice Lucy writes and talks on family law and has particular interests in issues arising from the involvement of litigants in person in family cases, and in issues surrounding the publication of information arising from family proceedings and transparency.

Lucy gave oral evidence to the President's Transparency Review in March 2021, and has been appointed as the legal blogger for the Family Court Transparency Implementation Group (TIG).

Lucy is the author of 'The Family Court without a Lawyer – A Handbook for Litigants in Person' (4th edition 2022, Bath Publishing) and co-author of 'Transparency in the family courts: Publicity and privacy in practice' (2018, Bloomsbury Press).

Lucy has also produced a series of free self-help videos for Litigants in Person. The three videos are available to view for free on YouTube or via the website accompanying the book (www.nofamilylawyer.co.uk).

Lucy has been writing about family law since 2007 primarily through her popular Pink Tape. Lucy was awarded the Family Law Readers Commentary Award 2012, and was shortlisted for Most Innovative Family Lawyer. In October 2014 Lucy was shortlisted for a third time for the Readers' Commentary award. Lucy has written for various publications including the New Statesman, inews and The Guardian. Lucy now writes extensively for The Transparency Project blog, particularly their Family Court Reporting Watch project. Lucy was Bristol Law Society's 'Barrister of the Year' in 2016.

Lucy is involved with local initiatives to develop support for litigants in person, including the www.familycourtinfo.org.uk website.

She is also a trained mediator (non-practising).

Lucy delivers workshops and lectures within chambers and externally, including:

- ▶ Case law updates and topical seminars e.g. Teenagers: secure accommodation, deprivation of liberty and the inherent jurisdiction
- ▶ Transparency (various to Family Justice Boards, Judicial College, International Conferences)
- ▶ Legal blogging workshops
- ▶ Litigants in person

Lucy has participated in debates and panel discussions on a range of family law topics including domestic abuse, covert recording, and the reporting of family courts.

Lucy participated in the 2018 Family Justice Council Debate.
